President's Message

Summer 1993

Well, here it is - the end of a long, hot summer. I hope those of you who have been searching for those elusive ancestors have had some luck during our vacation.

Personally, I think I finally hit pay dirt and if I dig a little harder it will prove to be a gold mine. During the past 20 years, I have written many letters to various Hancocks hoping to find one connected to my family of South Carolina and Georgia Hancocks. Alas, I was beginning to think the name Hancock almost as common as Smith and Jones. They seemed to be everywhere but none that I could tie to. This summer, I found on a surname list someone in Georgia who was researching both Hancock and Huie. Knowing that one of my Hancock ancestors married a Huie, I wrote to see if we were in the same family. Sure enough, she said I made her day and she certainly made mine. I have found a Georgia relative. Actually, I had more family names of the branches and twigs but she has access to the courthouses, newspapers, and the Georgia Archives. So she has graciously volunteered to do that sort of research and fill in the gaps for me. This was so exciting to me that I just had to share it with you.

On Saturday, August 21, I accompanied Bill Finch, our new Vice President, to Bastrop to attend their meeting. Bill was the speaker for this occasion and I just went along for moral support - not that he needed it. He did a great job and we were both well received by the Bastrop group. It is my understanding that their gratuity will be a book for our library. We appreciate their generosity and that of Bill Finch for making it possible.

This will be our last Kin Collecting to be published prior to our Seminar scheduled for September 25. I hope all of our members who are within driving distance will attend and bring a friend. I missed Ron Bremmer's last Seminar and was told I should not miss another. Also, as the Bastrop people pointed out - it's free, and you don't find that often. So, mark it on your calendar, come for the day and bring a friend, and a sack lunch, or go out for lunch, whichever you desire - but come!

Our latest book, Kin Collecting Volume I, is now completed and ready for sale. I have been told that there are still a few that have not been spoken for so if there are those who have been thinking about getting one and just put it off, you'd better go ahead and buy it because we might not do another printing. That first year was a great one. Everyone went to work and abstracted many records from the courthouse. Five quarterlies were printed and they contained lots of good stuff. I have thoroughly enjoyed mine and recommend the book for everyone who was not a member at that time.

One last reminder: If you have not paid your 1993-94 dues, it's time!

BLANCHE HANCOCK TURLINGTON.

History of First United Methodist Church Hamburg, Arkansas

The following is from the Homecoming Day Program dated Sunday, May 6, 1990.

The town of Hamburg was established in 1848 and by 1850 the people decided it would be the seat of government for the county. A small one-room log building was constructed and used for the Court House. This also served the community for worship and school for a few years.

Sometime during the time between 1848 and 1850 a woman by the name of Mary E. Bonds organized the first church school in Hamburg. By 1850 there were enough Methodists in Hamburg that a minister, Reverend Peter Haskew, was sent by the conference. His congregation built a small one-room church—the first church building in Hamburg. This church was used until 1858 when the Hamburg Methodist Church South purchased, at a cost of $125, the property where the present sanctuary is located. A frame church was constructed on the site. The church bell was struck in England and shipped to New Orleans and brought on the river to Marie Saline Landing arriving on the day President Lincoln was assassinated. The bell was transported by wagon to the church. This bell was one of three in Hamburg and it tolled for services and funerals and rang out for fires and great celebrations. This bell was transferred to the new church in 1911. The church progressed and added many members.

Hamburg First United Methodist Church 1858 – 1910

The following information is based on clippings from the county newspaper, The Eagle, during 1910 and 1911. On May 5, 1910, the Methodist Church stated they would soon realize their long cherished hope of a new church building. The present building was not adapted to the needs of their great Sunday School and not in keeping with the progress of the town nor of the age; therefore, the members resolved to enter at once on the construction of a commodious modern building. The church conducted a subscription drive and people gave liberally and gladly. Within less than a week more than $10,000 had been secured. Miss Olivia Thompson, one of God's saints who was greatly afflicted, made the first deposit to credit the Building Fund, consisting of $500 in cash. In this act she honored herself and her God and set an example worthy of the emulation of others. On May 19, 1910, a benefit performance was given by Clifton Simpson which netted a nice sum for the League Window. A series of high class entertainments were planned by various organizations of the church for the accumulation of funds for the new church. On June 30, 1910, a picture of the new church as adopted by the Building Committee was furnished by the architects and was exhibited at Pryor's Drug Store. The members and friends were invited to call there and see it. It elicited praise from all who saw it. It was noted that a citizen who had not joined the church endeavor voluntarily contributed $400 to the Building Fund. The Woman's Home Mission Society had a meeting on June 23, 1910, and reported they had raised more than $206 for the new church. On July 21, 1910, a benefit performance at the theater netted $10 for the window fund. On July 23, 1910, the Home Mission Society met and set aside $250 for the Home Mission Memorial Window. On July 7, 1910, a former citizen, L. S. Eatman, agreed to place some art glass windows in the new church. The church was awaiting plans and specification from the architect and when they arrived the contractors were ready to prepare bids for the Committee. On the following Sunday Miss Olivia, who made her home with her nephew, Thompson Murphy, died and this grieved the community greatly, especially because she did not live to see the new church. The breaking of dirt for the new church was held on Tuesday, August 4, 1910. The work on the foundation began immediately. On August 11, 1910, the work on the church had been satisfactorily begun with excavation for the Ladies' parlor, kitchen, reception room and heating plant completed. The foundation work was slow because of its importance and because they were building for half a century. They invited everyone to come by and see the work and noted that only the best materials were being used. The Building Committee gave much of their valuable time in attending to every detail. Mr. Jacoby of the Jacoby Art Glass Company of St. Louis came over Saturday at the Committee's request and spent several days. It was arranged for him to furnish handsome Art Glass for the entire building and all to be made to order. All the windows at all prominent places were Memorial Windows. Sixteen windows were of memorial design with suitable inscriptions. The glass was to be both artistic and elaborate for the entire structure. On August 11, 1910, the writer for The Eagle went to Little Rock and arranged for the Cornerstone for the new church and for the ceremonies attending the laying of it. It was to be laid masonically by the Grand Lodge of Arkansas, and was to be a great occasion. The writer also accompanied a representative of Art Glass to Montrose where he met Mr. deYampert of Wilmot for the purpose of selecting an elegant memorial window for his parents who were devout members of the congregation. On February 23, 1911, the handsome Memorial windows arrived and were placed. The work of completion was progressing to their entire satisfaction. On March 2, 1911, at the close of the morning service the new church, nearing completion, was opened for inspection by the members. On April 13, 1911, the formal opening of the new church was held with a great Sunday School attendance of 181. After a moving service the members of the church gathered at the altar in a reconsecration of themselves to God. Thus closed the first service which the writer hoped to be the beginning of a new era in the church life.

Three additions have been made to this 1910 building. The first, in 1950, to the back of the building was a two-story addition containing a fellowship hall, kitchen and classrooms. In 1956 another two-story addition on the south side contained a new fellowship hall, classrooms, and a pastor's study. The sanctuary was completely remodeled in the early 1960's enlarging the total seating area, installing new carpet, pews, air conditioning and other improvements. The church purchased adjoining property as needed. The most recent addition, completed in October 1983, is a new fellowship hall, choir room, kitchen, and stage. The old fellowship hall has been remodeled to make new classrooms, a pastor's study and a secretary's office.

Genealogical Bulletin Boards

Submitted by ACGS member W. E. Ned Hastings

For the past few months I have been using my computer to experiment with a couple of genealogical bulletin boards. While there may be stand alone boards, I signed on first with the Compuserve Board and then with the Prodigy Board.

All you need, in addition to your computer is a modem that will connect your computer to the phone line. Modems are not very expensive and you should be able to get a 2400 baud (speed of transmission) modem for under $50. I think the internal modem boards are best because they don't take up desk space.

Compuserve and Prodigy are nationwide bulletin board services that offer almost everything. Compuserve is the most complete, offering travel services, almost a complete library service Etc. and a genealogical bulletin board. I didn't like Compuserve as well as Prodigy because there were so many users trying to access the system at the same time I was trying. It slowed up the response time considerably. Prodigy seemed much faster.

The cost of these Bulletin Boards is about the same: $15 - 20 a month. The main cost however is paying a toll charge to the Monroe, LA access number. If one lived in a city, the telephone access would be free. Our nearest number however is Monroe. This is less expensive than calling the Little Rock number because of interstate rates to an adjoining state are cheaper than intrastate rates. If you are careful, you can make a call to the Bulletin Board for around $2 if you call after 6 PM. From 11 PM Friday to 5 PM Sunday is the least expensive time.

The Prodigy Bulletin Board is organized by subject matter. I always look at the Surnames A-H first; then go on to secondary lines. Last week I made my first contact with a lady listing one of my Hastings lines. She had sent an open note to All asking if someone was related to Ester Hastings, b. 1779. I wrote back that this was my line. Another lady joined in the discussion and said she also was interested in the line. I asked both to leave their addresses on E Mail for me. This is the private message department of Prodigy as opposed to the open genealogical bulletin board.

In addition to the genealogical board, I enjoy communicating with my son-in-law at Monticello and my daughter in Dallas. You can send a message to anyone in the United States who is a subscriber to Prodigy.

If anyone is interested in this service I have the particulars on sign-up.

Newspaper Abstracts

This is a series of abstracts from the Ashley County Eagle, the oldest available newspaper in Ashley County. We started this series in Kin Collecting I, No. 5 and publish several pages each year. The abstracts have been copied from microfilm by several members of ACGS, including the present abstractor, Rebecca Brown.

Our Circuit Clerks office was entered by burglars last Sunday night and all the indictments returned by the last Grand Jury taken out and carried away, together with the book in which testimony was recorded. The perpetrator of the deed understood the situation, the small iron safe containing the indictments being opened by one who understood the combination, and who knew where to find the record book in the back part of the Clerk's large writing desk. The office was entered by prizing open the front window blinds and raising the sash. The theft relieves the criminal docket of about one hundred cases booked for trial at the next term of court, unless the Grand Jury should be called together in special session to do its work all over.

John Rathbone of Block Island: Founder of Our Family in America

Article written by Frank H. Rathbone
Contributed to Kin Collecting by Robert Rathbone, see address on page 16.

A plaque embedded in Settlers' Rock on Block Island lists the names of the first purchasers and settlers, including that of John Rathbun, as the name came to be spelled. Also on both lists is Edward Vose (Vorse). Rathbun's partner in the purchase, John Acres (Ackurs), Rathbun's brother-in-law, is listed as an original settler.

Virtually all the Rathbuns, Rathbones and Rathburns in America today are descended from John Rathbone who migrated to the New World from England about 1654. He is undoubtedly the same John Rathbone who was baptized March 28 1629, at Farnworth Chapel, Parish of Prescott, County of Lancashire, England. His father was Thomas Rathbone, a shoemaker in the town of Ditton, 11 miles east of Liverpool on the Mersey River (see article on p. 8).

The family was poor, and young John was probably put to work as a small boy either in his father's shoe shop or as an apprentice to a neighboring tradesman. He received little, if any, schooling, and remained illiterate until his death.

In the early 1650s, he married Margaret Acres, the daughter of Thomas Acres, a neighbor in Ditton.

This was a period of great unrest in England. Years of civil war ended in 1653 with the beheading of Charles II and the installation of Cromwell as Lord Protector.

In 1654, Thomas Rathbone, the shoemaker, died. He left a small sum of money to his youngest son, John, who apparently used the money to take his bride to America, which was already developing a reputation as a land of opportunity. They first settled in Dorchester, Mass., where a number of Lancashire immigrants were already living. Unfortunately, the Dorchester town records for this period were destroyed by fire, and we have no records of his early days there.

John Rathbone's name first appears in American records on August 17, 1660, when he was listed among 12 Massachusetts men who met at the Roxbury home of Dr. John Alcock to consider the purchase of Block Island, 12 miles off the coast of what is now Rhode Island. Alcock proposed that 16 ye inhabitants to pass to the sea when they see occasion." For this privilege, Rathbone gave the town an acre of land.

John Rathbone apparently maintained a second home in Newport for a number of years. The birth of his youngest son, Samuel, on Aug. 3, 1672, is recorded in early Quaker records at Newport. In 1674, he was living in Hammersmith, in southwest Newport. In 1681, he was elected to represent Block Island as deputy to the Rhode Island General Assembly, a position he held for the next five years. He apparently remained in Newport during this time and his name appears on a Freemen's List there in 1683.

Sir Edmond Andros, appointed by King James as Royal Governor for the United Colonies, did "take notice" of the signers in the new government. All were rewarded for their loyalty by appointments. Rathbone was named in 1688 as a Grand Juryman on the General Quarter Sessions Court, which replaced the General Assembly as the governing body of the colony.

That same year, however, saw the overthrow of King James in the Glorious Revolution. The Crown Party was out of favor, and Rathbone returned to Block Island, his political career cut short. Less than a century later, his descendants would be fighting a later King in the American Revolution.

In July 1689, Block Island was in-

From the standpoint of land value, Rathbone's Block Island investment had been a profitable one. In 1684, 210 acres were sold for as much as the entire island had cost just 23 years earlier. Our ancestors also lived through inflationary times.

In his will, dated Feb. 12, 1702, at Block Island, John Rathbone described himself as "yeoman, being sick in body but of perfect memory." He was not too sick, however, to attend the April 8 town meeting with all five of his sons. Presumably he died early that fall, for the will was formally proved before the town clerk on October 6.

Although he listed himself as of "Block Island," the inventory of his estate indicates that he considered Newport his principal home. The contents of his "Newport House" included beds, pewter, wearing apparel, a bible and a gun. His Block Island inventory consisted entirely of livestock—11 cattle and 70 sheep.

He apparently conducted some sort of business in Newport, since his will refers to a "shop" there. A 1702 record lists him as one of the proprietors of the Newport Town Wharf.

The date of Margaret Rathbone's death is not known. She survived her husband for at least 14 years. In July 1707, she was listed as the owner of a lot in Newport—presumably the property left her in John's will. In March 1716, as the "widow and relick of John Rathbun, deceased," she made a deposition on Block Island regarding property she and her husband had deeded to their son, John Rathbun, Jr.

Of their five sons, three lived and died on the island—John Jr., Thomas and Samuel. The other two, William and Joseph, moved to the mainland. During the first quarter of the 18th Century, Rathbun (as it came to be spelled) must have been the island's most common name. The census of 1708 listed 208 residents, of whom at least 58 were Rathbuns. Of the 38 freemen in 1708, seven were Rathbuns. There was a wave of migration to the mainland between 1725 and 1740, and the 1744 list of "tax ratables"

Virtually all the Rathbuns, Rathbones and Rathbuns in America today are descended from John Rathbone, who migrated to the New World from England about 1654.

In 1685, John Rathbone was a member of the Crown Party, which supported King James' order vacating the Rhode Island colonial charter, and uniting the colony with Massachusetts Bay, New Plymouth, New Hampshire and Maine. A majority of the General Assembly voted to defy the King and continue operations under the old charter. Rathbone and 12 other delegates sent a petition to King James pledging their allegiance to the crown:

"With all dutiful respect and submission as becometh loyal subjects, and in obedience thereto, we . . . doe hereby present our full and free submission and entire resignation of the powers given us in said charter, unto your Majestie's pleasure, humbly desiring . . . that your Majestie will take such notice of us in the succeeding government as may best consist with your Majestie's honour and our good . . ."

Rathbone was the only one of the 13 who signed with "his mark"—carefully printing "JR" for his signature. This is one of two documents (the other is his will) which show that he was illiterate, not uncommon in that day.

vaded by a French privateer, looking for plunder. The invaders asked some of the islanders who was most likely to have money, and were directed to John Rathbone.

The Frenchmen went to the Rathbone home, and seized John Rathbone Jr., not realizing there were two men with the same name. The younger John, then about 35 years old, was tied, stripped to the waist, and whipped by the French in an effort to make him "confess" where he had hidden his money.

By posing as his father, young John enabled his parents to escape capture and possible harm at the hands of the invaders.

It is a matter of conjecture whether the elder Rathbone was really one of the richest men on the island, or whether his neighbors resented his recent association with the discredited Crown Party. He had, however, accumulated a considerable amount of property on the island: between 1679 and 1693, he gave 255 acres of land to his children. Family tradition relates that he did this in the hope that his descendants would remain on the island forever.

families could share in the purchase and establish a "plantation" on the island.

The 12 men at the meeting agreed to the purchase, and to send a surveyor to the island. The group, expanded to 16, later re-assembled and made plans to divide the 6,720-acre island. Drawings were held to assign each of the proprietors a "great lot" in both the northern and southern sections of the island.

Most of the proprietors agreed to purchase a full one-sixteenth share, two took double shares, and several, less affluent, pooled their funds and bought half-shares. Among the latter were John Rathbone and Edward Vose. Their land in the southern section lay along the southeastern coast, encompassing what is now known as Mohican Bluff. That, together with their lot in the northern tract, gave them, they thought, a total of 420 acres of land.

Within a few years, Rathbone realized that the original survey had been inaccurate. He obtained a second survey, which established that he and Vose had been shorted by 130 acres in their "great lot" in the southeastern corner. He appealed to the attorneys for the Alcock estate—John Alcock having died—and they agreed in 1671 to give him "what land shall be found wantinge . . . in some convenient place in the commonland."

To make up for the shortage, Rathbone was given 60 acres near the center of the island, stretching from near what is now the town center to the ocean on the east side. That surveying error proved to be a bonanza, for the correction gave him a strategically located piece of land in what became the most valuable part of the island.

Rathbone must have been a man of foresight. For the next few years he steadily increased his holdings on the island. In 1674, he purchased 42 acres and in 1680, he bought 12½ adjoining acres.

On Oct. 10, 1680, he made the final payment for his share of the original purchase, as shown in this early land record:

"I, John Williams . . . executor of the estate of John Alcock . . . doe acquit John Rathbon from the payment of 30 pounds which hath been received . . . 11 pounds five shillings (by) said Alcock . . . and the rest by Thomas Terry and myself . . . in full payment of a two and thirtieth part of Block Island . . . which said Rathbon bought of Mr. Alcock as by an account upon the Block Island Book of Accounts . . ."

This would indicate that Rathbone had made a down payment of somewhat less than 50 percent, and had repaid the balance over a period of nearly 20 years—a system similar to today's 20-year mortgage plans.

From surviving records of his land transactions, it is apparent that Rathbone's major holdings, and his home, were in the central part of the island, which very early emerged as the town center. He also retained his original tract in the south end, for in April 1680 the town officers gave him permission to erect a fence "across ye highway in ye south end of ye island and to hang and maintain a gate for ye liberty of Settlers' Rock on the desolate northeastern coast of Block Island marks the landing place of the first settlers in 1661. The site is known as Cow Cove because one of the settlers' cows was the first to reach shore. There is a tradition that the cow belonged to John Rathbone.

showed only four Rathbun families remaining on the island.

There are no Rathbuns living on the island today (the last one died in 1911), but many Block Islanders trace their ancestry to John and Margaret Rathbone.

The VA Form 40-1330 requires the name and address of person, cemetery, or official who will accept prepaid delivery of the marker. P. O. Box is not sufficient. Signatures of person to accept delivery and cemetery official are both required.

My Own Grandpaw

Many, many years ago when I was 23...
I was married to a widow who was as pretty as could be.

This widow had a grown up daughter who had hair of red;
My father fell in love with her and soon they too were wed.

This made my Dad by son-in-law and changed my very life;
For my daughter was my mother 'cause she's my Father's wife.

To complicate the matter even tho it brought me joy,
I soon became a father of a bouncing baby boy!

My little baby then became a brother-in-law to Dad, and so became my uncle tho it made me very sad!

For if he was my uncle then that also makes him brother of the widow's grown up daughter who, of course, was my step-mother.

Father's wife then had a son who kept them on the run;
and he became my grandchild for he was my daughter's son.

My wife is now my mother's mother and it makes me blue...
Because although she is my wife she's my grandmother too.

Now if my wife is my grandmother then I'm her grandchild;
And every time I think of it, it nearly drives me wild!

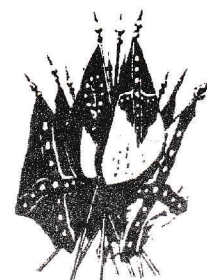

For now I have become the strangest case you ever saw;
As husband of my grandmother I am My Own Grandpaw!!

ATTACKS on the COLORS

Confederate Records Crumble Away

From The Confederate Gazette, John Perry, Editor

Southern culture has been besieged on many fronts in recent years, but the biggest loser may well be the records of the Confederate government. The records, which include payrolls, hospital records, prison records, governmental correspondence, bills passed by the Confederate Congress, and the all important Confederate Army muster rolls, are simply being allowed to decay. Over 5,730 cubic feet of Confederate records are held hostage in the National Archives destined to eventually fade completely away.

After the Confederate government fell, the official Confederate Government records, that had been well maintained by Inspector Adjutant General Samuel Cooper, passed into the hands of Federal forces. Initially, each document was stamped, "Rebel Archives," and they were held in the War Department in Washington, D.C. Today the records are kept in the National Archives' central facility on Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington.

The records are badly deteriorating according to various Archives' personnel. Archivist Dr. Michael Meir stated, "They're going to seed quickly." The records are being kept in stacks of ordinary cardboard boxes with no precautions being taken to preserve them. There are two main reasons why the records are in such a state.

Part of the problem is the documents themselves. The Confederacy suffered through many shortages and one major shortage was paper. Toward the end of the war, paper was virtually not available. Southern newspapers had to resort to printing issues on the backs of wallpaper.

The Confederate government used captured Union paper or made its own lesser grade paper. Ink was also very scarce. Many different generals had their own recipe for making ink to do their required paper work. Ink was often made from ingredients such as vinegar and pine bark.

The other problem is a political one. The National Archives is the official depository of all documents relating to American history, from 1776, to the recent Gulf War.

Federal agencies, from the Department of Agriculture to the Veterans Administration and commissions of all kinds, annually deposit approximately 4 billion documents. With limited air conditioned and climate control space, each agency and commission lobbies for its documents to be preserved.

Unfortunately, there is no active Confederate Government to lobby for proper care of its documents. As put by archivist Bill Lind, "There's nobody to speak for the dead... My ancestors were Yankees, but I think it's a crime that those records (Confederate) are sitting there with nobody to defend them," Lind said.

Perhaps of all the records that are decaying, the greatest loss will be the muster rolls of the Confederate Army. There are literally hundreds of thousands of muster rolls where Confederate commanders kept tabs on companies and regiments. The rolls were drawn up every two months and recorded were the names of those active, those that were sick, absent or injured, the condition of the company's supplies, arms, and discipline and even battles, skirmishes, and marches.

"They (muster rolls) are an absolute irreplaceable resource," according to Robert Krick, chief historian at the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania National Military Park. Without these records, serious research cannot be done. "They are an invaluable piece of our historical heritage," Krick said.

Unfortunately, the Archives does not have any plans to even microfilm the documents. Pointing out budgetary constraints, the Archives claims it does not have the funds to either film or preserve the documents. Last year, however, the Archives did find the funds to preserve the muster rolls of the 54th Massachusetts, the black regiment fictionalized in the movie "Glory."

In the sterile atmosphere of the Archives preservation lab the 54th's records were painstakingly restored, microfilmed and then encapsulated in plastic film to last forever. Unfortunately, the Confederate records are today not "politically correct" and continue to rot away to nothing in ordinary cardboard boxes in the Archives basement.

A new state of the art Archives II building, with all the correct climate controls, has been constructed in College Park, Maryland. Again, without political clout, Confederate records will not be moved. What will be moved? Among other records, the valuable memoirs of the now defunct Federal Supply Service, which handled important janitorial matters for the Federal government.

What can be done? It will probably require Congressional action to appropriate the necessary funds to preserve our heritage. Write your Congressional representatives before it is too late!

Goyne, McDougal

Corrections of query from Kin Collecting, Vol. VII, # 3: I would like to ask for a couple of corrections to be made in the next issue. Number one: The name should be Goyne not Goynes unless using it plurally. Number Two: The name McDonal should be McDougal.

I need to contact those with the name Goyne not only in Ashley County but also in Morehouse Parish, LA. The reason is to give them information of the Goyne Reunion May 1994 in Houston, Texas. Also would like to have a newsletter sent to them.

AUDIENCE CRITIQUES:

Mills has the most devious ways . . .
of finding ancestors!

—Samford University IGHR,
Advanced Methodology Track

Wow!
Energy level so high
I left "fired up" and ready-to-go instead of weary & saturated from our full week.

—NIGR, National Archives

I'd learn from Elizabeth Mills even if the topic was Planting Lima Beans in Georgia!
—National Genealogical Society Conference

Mills lectures at a lively pace and keeps interest keen by using actual cases, maps, and handouts showing the techniques used to solve each puzzle.
—From Roots to Limbs

I feel as though
I've sat at the feet of Socrates!
—Samford University IGHR Professional Track

I've been doing genealogy for 25 years.
If anybody had told me
I needed to re-do my census work,
I never would have believed it
... but
Mills just made a believer out of me!
—Federation of Genealogical Society Conference

The single most popular speaker at American genealogical conferences.
Columns: Newsletter of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin

Mills is the "Pied Piper of Genealogy."
I've followed her from Denver to Boston.
Now here I am in Mississippi.
—Leflore County Genealogical Seminar
